

Collective Agreements in Ladies' Garment Trades in New York City and Boston

The image shows a document with several tables of data. The tables are arranged in a grid-like fashion, with multiple columns and rows of text. The text is small and difficult to read, but it appears to be a detailed record of collective agreements, including dates, names of parties, and other relevant information. The document is titled 'Collective Agreements in Ladies' Garment Trades in New York City and Boston'.

Chart listing collective agreements between labor unions and manufacturers' associations New York City' and Boston's clothing industries. For each agreement, the chart details information in several categories, such as the date of the agreement, the number of people involved, minimum wage rates, hours of labor, holidays, and more.
