

Map Showing Roman Expansion Between Sicilian and Hannibalian Wars

A map of the "Expansion of Roman Power between the Sicilian and Hannibalian Wars with Carthage (B.C 241-218)," from J.H. Breasted's Survey of the Ancient World. The original picture was taken with the permission of Ginn and Company, the publishers. The Sicilian and Hannibalian Wars are more commonly known as the First and Second Punic Wars, fought between the Roman Republic and the empire of Carthage in North Africa. The First Punic War erupted over the governing of Sicily, which had been under the control of Greece and Carthage. Although both Carthage and Rome inflicted massive military, and economic, damage on one another, Rome ultimately prevailed after the defeat of Carthage's great general Hannibal Barca, n.d.

Identifier

NYSA_A3045-78_A7885

Alternate Identifier

DMS ID Number: 887

Negative Numbers: A7885

Date

1919 – 1939

Contributor

Ginn and Company (publishers)

Repository

New York State Archives

Source

New York State Archives. New York (State). Education Dept. Division of Visual Instruction. Instructional lantern slides, ca. 1856-1939. A3045-78, A7885.

Rights

This image is provided for education and research purposes. Rights may be reserved. Responsibility for securing permissions to distribute, publish, reproduce or other use rest with the user. For additional information see our Copyright and Use Statement

More From This Series

Instructional lantern slides

Geographic Locations

Greece (is associated with)

Egypt (is associated with)

Italy (is associated with)