

Kashmir State, India

Seven men, many wearing trousers and turbans, cross the Jhelum River in Garhi, Kashmir, India, using a three-rope suspension bridge. One rope is meant to be walked on, while the other two are grasped with the hands for balance. The men are walking with their feet pointed outward for balance. The Jhelum River is a tributary of the Indus River, and flows through the northeast of Kashmir. Kashmir is a disputed territory, with parts of the region claimed by India, other parts claimed by Pakistan, and a small section under the control of China, (1912).

Identifier

NYSA_A3045-78_B3246

Alternate Identifier

DMS ID Number: 163

Negative Numbers: B3246

Date

1912

Repository

New York State Archives

Source

New York State Archives. New York (State). Education Dept, Division of Visual Instruction. Instructional lantern slides, ca. 1856-1939. A3045-78, B3246.

Rights

This image is provided for education and research purposes. Rights may be reserved. Responsibility for securing permissions to distribute, publish, reproduce or other use rest with the user. For additional information see our Copyright and Use Statement

More From This Series

Division of Visual Instruction instructional lantern slides

Geographic Locations

India (is associated with)