

[Telegram from Governor Edwin D. Morgan to Abraham Lincoln]

34

May 21. 1861

His Excellency
Abraham Lincoln,
Washington, D.C.

It is difficult to leave at once. If you deem my ~~going~~ going more important than the discharge of duties here of true character, inform me and I will do.

E.D. Morgan.

Telegram from Edwin D. Morgan, Governor of New York, to President Abraham Lincoln, 1862. Morgan, replying to an earlier communication, noted that it would be difficult to leave his duties as governor to go on assignment, but that he would be willing to do so if Lincoln thought it absolutely necessary.
