

Home of Charles Steinmetz in Schenectady, New York. June 21, 1941

Home of Charles Proteus Steinmetz in Schenectady, New York. Steinmetz was a German-American mathematician and electrical engineer who pioneered the development of the alternating current and made discoveries in the understanding of hysteresis. He emigrated from Germany in 1889 and relocated to Schenectady, New York. He served as president of Schenectady's city council.

Identifier

NYSA_A0245-77_Schenectady_B19_24

Alternate Identifier

DMS ID Number: 185284

Date

June 21 1941

Repository

New York State Archives

Source

New York State Archives. New York (State). Education Dept. Division of Archives and History. Photographs of historic sites and structures, 1936-1963. Series A0245-77. Schenectady County.

Rights

This image is provided for education and research purposes. Rights may be reserved. Responsibility for securing permissions to distribute, publish, reproduce or other use rest with the user. For additional information see our Copyright and Use Statement

More From This Series

Education Department Division of Archives and History photographs of historic sites and structures

Geographic Locations

Schenectady County (is associated with)