

50th Anniversary Celebration of Conservation Dept.

Two gentlemen reflect on the early days of the Conservation Department at the 50th anniversary celebration. Neither gentleman is identified in the image, but the man on the left is possibly Gifford Pinchot, former Chief Forester of the United States. This celebration commemorates the fifty year anniversary of the law which established the Forest Commission, the ancestor of the Conservation Department, as well as the Adirondack Forest Preserve. This image was created to record the festivities sponsored by the Conservation Department commemorating the anniversary.
